Closing Out Sale!

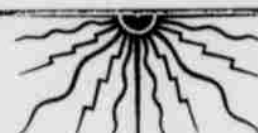

Bargains.

We have fully decided to close out our business and the public will certainly receive the benefit of the sale, as you can save money on everything you buy. Goods will be sold at cost and everything marked at less than cost. All must go for what they will bring. We have a large stock of DRY GOODS and NOTIONS. A large stock of Groceries, most of which will be sold at cost. We will keep on hand Staple Groceries to help sell other goods. Now we ask for your patronage to help us out as we mean business and the goods must go. Secure bargains while the stock is complete and plenty to select from. Thanking you for past favors,

We Remain Yours,

J. C. Holden.

The Secret Installation.

The "Bees" of Roseburg Tent, No. 310, were tranquilly engaged in a secret installation of officers on Wednesday evening, Jan. 10, when the door leading to the "Inner Temple" was violently thrust open and the Picket, who had guarded well the entrance during the year, was thrown headlong on his hands and knees upon the floor.

Within the hive was great consternation and commotion which quickly changed to supreme happiness and keen anticipation as they beheld their wives and lady friends come into their midst bearing baskets filled with all the delicacies of the season.

At the time this intrusion occurred, the candidates had all been installed but the newly elected Picket. This was too much for him, however, and he fled terror stricken to his home. A younger, stronger, and possibly a braver Sir Knight was then elected and duly installed in presence of the ladies evidently to discourage a second attempt on their part of gaining an entrance to the sacred precincts of the Order.

A short recess now occurred during which tables, reaching the entire length of the hall, were spread with the bounties above mentioned. The Commander then called the Tent to order and a short program interspersed with fine music by a choir of Roseburg young people was rendered. It consisted of a reading by Miss Maggie Bradshaw, a recitation by Frank Snyder, a reading by Hugh M. Noble, and, to crown all, the recitation of an original poem by the Sir Knight Commander's wife, Mrs. George Bradshaw. It ran as follows:

The Royal Knights in conclave met,
(As usual, rather late),
And put their heads together
In a would-be wise debate,
And finally decided
After due consideration
To finish up the season
With a secret installation.

What man proposes, woman disposes,
Of small import is he
And little do his wishes count
Against the "bees" that be,
So while each Knight sat listlessly
Untroubled by expectation,
The ladies came amongst them
Just to see the installation.

Each brought a well filled basket
Containing choicest fare,
This surely would a passport be
To gain admittance here.
The charming Knight Commander smiled
With keen anticipation,
For he knew a pleasant ceremony
Would follow the installation.

And now we hope prosperity
Throughout the coming year,
United with good fellowship
May reign in concert here,
And may wisdom reach her wand
Towards those rulers of creation,
Who tried to cheat the ladies
With a secret installation.

The program having been highly appreciated by all, the Sir Knights now sought a realization of their "keen anticipations." Fate had a hand in the choice of a companion for supper, as each of the fair sex were numbered to correspond to the number of a Bee, and

Many young "Bees" had to stand back and stare
To see how the old "Bees" were "getting there."

A very enjoyable time was had by all and the ladies have the hearty thanks of the entire Tent for the pleasant and complete surprise given them. The event closed by the ladies conveying home their empty baskets and well filled "Bees."
